A lot of people find it so hard to rid themselves of fat and cellulite as it is all about poor circulation. HYPOXI helps to increase your circulation to the problem areas and shift the weight from these zones.

Hypoxi was developed in 1999 by Austrian doctors who recognised the need for natural and scientific cellulite and fat loss. Hypoxi is now a global leader in innovative weight loss, operating in more than 32 countries.

The Hypoxi machines operate like an exercise bike, except the client is enclosed in a vacuum chamber from the waist down and a negative and positive pressure is applied to the skin while cycling.

This stimulates blood supply to the fatty tissue around the hips, buttocks and thighs – an area which traditionally, for pear-shaped women, has poor blood supply. For the stomach area, the Vacunaut operates like a treadmill, except the client is wearing a negative pressure suit made of airtight neoprene.

During gentle training, the vacuum chambers built into the suit alternate between negative and positive pressure, stimulating the breakdown of the fat tissue.

The negative pressure acts like a vacuum - sucking the blood into the fatty tissue of the stomach and hips, allowing the blood to be enriched with fatty acids. During the positive pressure phase, the fatty acid-enriched blood is pushed from the dermal tissue into the bloodstream and transported to the muscles, where the fatty acids are burnt off as fuel for movement.
